PREFACE.

THE political progress of the United States is unexampled in the history of the world. Two short centuries ago this vast country was but little more than an unbroken forest, inhabited only by savages and beasts of prey. Since then civilization has overshadowed the country, and still continues to wend her wafted and untiring wings to the uttermost recesses of the western wilds, heretofore unthought of and unknown. At present twenty-six Independent States, inhabited by upwards of 18,000,000 of free people, and who have polled at the Presidential canvass in 1844, 2,698,166 of freemen's votes, now enjoy themselves in uninterrupted security in those former savage haunts, and belong to one great Union—that of the United States: besides, four if not five large and unbounded territories comprising an area of country in extent greater than the area occupied by the twenty-six States, improving and populating as rapidly as the wings of emigration can bear them along, and which will, at no distant day, be members of this great confederacy. What a contrast between civilization and savage wildness! What a reflection! A knowledge of the political character of the United States, and the States individually, is then of the highest importance, and no person should be without it. The people are emphatically the lords of the nation, and it is by them, and through them, that our government exists—they are the government themselves. In the following pages will be found certain political, statistical and useful information that every freeman and freeman's child ought to be in possession of; and in the annexed Map will be found an accurate geographical delineation of the United States, their relative position, the manner in which they are subdivided into counties and parishes, and the geographical distance of the county towns from the capitals of their respective States.

In compiling a work like this, involving such an immense number of particulars and figures, it would be presumption to say that no mistakes have occurred. There may be some slight errors in the census, and in the official returns of elections, or in the distance of the county towns from the State capitals; but they can be of little importance and can effect nothing. It is the nearest approximation to the truth that research and indefatigable labor could ascertain, and in regard to every particular recorded, it will unquestionably be found to be not only the most extensive, the most accurate, but the most convenient reference book of the kind now published. The book and map will be annually revised and improved, and new additions added at the close of the annual elections.

With no other assurance from the public than the confident expectation that the labor spent in compiling this work will not have been spent in vain, but will be appreciated by the community generally, it is cheerfully presented:

H. H. LAUGHLIN.

Entered according to the Act of Congress, in the year 1844, by H. H. LAUGHLIN, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

MICHIGAN.—Continued.

Michigan, in 1805, was erected into a distinct Territory. In 1836, it was admitted into the Union, and the same year elected Stevens S. Mason, (Dem.) her Governor. Polled, in 1840, for President, 44,064, of which Harrison had 22,933; Van Buren, 21,131.—Whig maj. 1,802. The same year, for Governor, 36,812, of which Woodbridge, (W.) had 19,030; Farnsworth, (D.) 17,782.—Whig maj. 1,248. The returns of the Governor's election in 1843, were never accurately published by counties; but John S. Barry, (D.) was elected by about 2,000 over Pitcher, (W.)

Polled, in 1832, for President, 57,024, of which Jackson had 31,552; Clay, 25,472.—Dem. Maj. 6,080. In '31, for Governor, 64,095, of which Noble, (Dem.) had 36,795; Read, (W.) 27,300.—Dem. maj. 9,495. Same year, for Lieut. Governor, 58,318, of which Wallace, (D.) had 38,913; Culley, (W.) 20,405.—Dem. maj. 18,538. In '36, for President, 73,759, of which Harrison had 41,251; Van Buren, 32,478.—Whig maj. 8,803. In '40, for President, 116,906, of which Harrison had 65,302; Van Buren, 51,604.—Whig maj 13,698. In '43, for Governor, 119,415, of which Whitcomb, (D.) had 60,714; Bigger, (W.) 58,701.—Dem. maj. 2,013. Abolition vote, 1684. At the Annual Election for Members of the State Legislature, held August, '44, several of the counties were not politically contested. From this circumstance, it is utterly impossible to ascertain which political party had a majority of the popular vote.

Polled, in 1832, for President, 19,576, of which Jackson had 14,147; Clay, 5,429.—Dem. maj. 8,718. In '34, for Governor, 33,267, of which Duncan had 17,603; Kinney, 10,236; McLaughlin, 4,428; and Gen. Jas. Adams about 1,000. In '36, for President, 31,567, of which Van Buren had 17,275; Harrison, 14,298.—Dem. maj. 2,983. In '38, for Governor, 60,074, of which Carlin, (D.) had 30,535; Edwards, (W.) 29,539.—Dem. maj. 996. In '40, for President, 93,013, of which Van Buren had 47,476; Harrison, 45,537.—Dem. maj. 1,939. In '42, for Governor, 83,912, of which Ford, (Dem.) had 45,608; Duncan, (W.) 38,304.—Dem. maj. 7,301. In '44, the Democrats elected 6 Congressmen; the Whigs 1.—Aggregate Dem. maj. 14,775. The Governor is elected by the people for four years, but is eligible only four years in eight. The State Senators are elected for four years, and the Representatives for two years. Kaskaskia and Cahokia, in this State, was settled by the French, from Canada, as early as 1720. In 1763 it was ceded to the British. In 1789, it constituted a part of the North Western Territory. In 1800 Indiana and Illinois became a separate Territory. In 1809 it became a separate Territory by the name of Illinois; and in 1818 it was admitted to the Union as an independent State. Nearly all the settlements in this State have been made since 1800 by emigrants from other states.

		Majorities,	6,788	5,651	10,118

The official returns of the Presidential Election, in 1832, were so carelessly published, that it has been impossible to procure the number of votes polled; Jackson's majority, however, was 5,159. Polled, in '36, for President, 19,667, of which Van Buren had 9,979; Harrison, 9,685.—Dem. maj. 291. In '39, for Governor, 31,569, of which McNutt, (D.) had 16,864; Turner, (W.) 14,685.—Dem. maj. 2,199. In '40, for President, 52,732, of which V. Buren had 29,760; Harrison, 22,972.—Dem. maj. 6,788. In '44, for Governor, 68,365, of which Edwards, (Hards,) had 37,008; Allen, (Softs,) 31,359.—Hard's maj. 5,651.

† At present there is no Vice President. At the Presidential Election in 1840, William Henry Harrison, of Ohio, was elected President, and John Tyler, of Virginia, Vice President. They entered on their respective duties March 4, 1841. On the death of the President, April 4, 1841, just thirty days after his inauguration, Mr. Tyler succeeded to the Presidency, agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution. On the meeting of the following Congress, the Hon. Willie P. Mangum, Senator from North Carolina, was elected President of the Senate pro tem. In case of the death, resignation, or removal of Mr. Tyler, the Presidency devolves on that officer.

OF THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Congress of the United States consists of the Senate and House of Representatives. It assembles in the City of Washington on the first Monday in December annually. It is divided into two regular sessions, the first ending at will, the second on the 3d of March in every second year. In case of disagreement about the time of adjournment, the President of the United States may adjourn it to such times as he thinks proper; and may, on extraordinary occasions, convene a special session, upon giving forty days notice.

The Senate is composed of two members from each State, elected or chosen by the Legislatures of the several States for the term of six years; one-third of them being elected biennially; but in case of the death, resignation or disqualification of a Senator, the Governor of the State in which such vacancy arises may, in the absence of the Legislature, appoint a Senator for the time being. The Vice President of the United States is President of the Senate: in his absence a President pro tempore is chosen by that body. The Vice President has the casting vote, but it can only be exercised in case of an equal division of the votes of the Senators.

The present House of Representatives, by the act of 25th of June, 1842, consists of 223 members. They are apportioned among the States according to the federal population ascertained by the census of 1840, one Representative being returned for 70,680 inhabitants. They are elected for two years by the people of the several States. In some of them they are elected by a general ticket, in others by districts.

The compensation of each Senator and Member of the House of Representatives is $3 per day during the session of Congress, and $8 for every twenty miles travel in the usual road in going to and returning from the Capital of the United States. The President of the Senate pro tempore, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, receive each $16 per day. A Senator must be at least thirty years of age, and a Member of the House of Representatives twenty-five years of age, when elected. The former must have been nine years a citizen of the United States, and an inhabitant of the State from which he is chosen, and the latter at least seven years a citizen of the United States, and a resident of the State from which he is elected, unless they have been engaged in the service of the United States, or of their own States respectively.

TABLE—Showing the times of holding the Election of State Officers; the time of the meeting of the Legislatures in the several States; the Salaries of the several Governors, their terms of office and the expiration of the respective terms of the present incumbents; the number of Senators and Representatives in the State Legislatures, with their respective term, and the number of Congressmen each State is entitled to. * Gov. el. by Leg.

OF THE ELECTORS OF PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT.

The President and Vice President of the United States are elected by Electors apportioned among the States, according to the ratio of population. The number of Electors equals the number of the Senators and Members each State is entitled to in Congress. The last apportionment made the number of Electors 275; that of 1830, 291; and that of 1820, 261. The Electors are chosen in such manner as the Legislature of each State may provide. There have been three different modes of choosing Electors in the different States authorized by law: that of the people by districts—of the people by general Ticket—and by the State Legislatures. The manner of choosing by districts is entirely done away, and all the States have adopted the general ticket system, except South Carolina, where the electors are still chosen by the Legislature. The times of holding the elections for Electors varies in the different States. The choice of Electors must be made within thirty-four days preceding the first Wednesday of December of the year in which an election for President and Vice President takes place. The Electors are by law required to meet at the Capital of their respective States on the first Wednesday in December next after their election or appointment, and vote by ballot for a President and Vice President, one of whom shall not be an inhabitant of the same State with themselves. Lists of the number of votes thus given, and for whom, are then transmitted by the Electors, under seal, to the President of the Senate of the United States. The President of the Senate then opens and counts the lists thus forwarded to him from the several States, in presence of the Senate and House of Representatives. The person having the greatest number of electoral votes for President, is then duly announced elected, if such number be a majority of all the electors chosen; but if no person have such majority, then the House of Representatives shall immediately proceed to choose by ballot a President from the three highest on the list thus voted for. A quorum for this election consists of a member or members from at least two-thirds of the States, but a majority of all the States is only necessary to a choice. The votes are taken by States, the representation from each State having but one vote.

There has been but one instance since the election of Jefferson, when the election of President devolved on Congress—that of 1824. In this instance, the lists of votes forwarded by the electors, being opened in the Chamber of the House of Representatives, according to law, and it being announced that neither of the candidates for President had a majority of the whole number of votes, the House immediately proceeded to choose by ballot a President from the three candidates having the highest number of votes, viz. Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams, and William H. Crawford. The members of each State conferred together, a majority of whom making one vote. The result was,

John Quincy Adams had	-	-	13 States or votes.
Andrew Jackson	"	-	7 " "
Wm. H. Crawford,	"	-	4 " "

John Quincy Adams receiving a majority of all the votes, was declared duly elected. On page 73, will be seen a table exhibiting the votes of the Representatives in balloting to fix the vote of the State in 1824.—also, the number of Electoral votes, and for whom polled in 1824, '26, '32, '36, '40 & '44.

H. H. LAUGHLIN'S REVOLVING CALCULATOR.

I have now in the hands of the engravers a new and highly approved SELF-CALCULATOR, which will be engraved in a few weeks, and ready for press; the nature and object of which is to shorten and facilitate the old routine pen and pencil manner of estimating Interest or Discount on Bonds, Notes, Running Accounts, &c., and in the many thousand calculations daily figured over in the Mercantile and Mechanical departments. The calculations are so arranged that by simply moving an index or leader, the interest or discount on any amount of money for any number of years, months and days required will instantly appear—or will give the amount on any number of items or fractions of items at any price or prices, and in any currency required; and will, with the same facility and accuracy, calculate Superficial, Solid and Circular Measurements, giving the contents in decimals, or feet, inches, &c., at pleasure. In short, there are no ordinary calculations in the every day transactions of the business community, but what will be shortened and facilitated by its application. A further notice of it is unnecessary at present, as the work itself will soon be placed in the hands of the public for examination.
